

Thanks to you and your staff for showing us all, not just the kids, how to live with an "attitude of gratitude."

I am always humbled by and admire how you and your staff conduct yourselves and what you all bring to the table of life, not just basketball.

For sports is just an entree into learning more about how we were once and remain always loved by God whether we like it and choose to accept it or not as you well know.

Christ is our light ... However only when people like you and your staff demonstrate as much, particularly to young people like you do. Better yet, they probably don't even know it is happening to them... However they will know years from now and those are the real TD passes and 3 pointers that you are making happen and which I am sure Christ is counting and counting on you, your staff and myself to convert.

It is my hope that each year to follow, I can at least somehow become even better at doing as much. Thanks to you and your staff, I know that I a better equipped to do it and know when I have done it well.

I wish God's continued blessings to you, your staff and your families this holiday season!

Go Irish!

Sincerely,

Jamie
